Heartworm attacks near epidemic levels

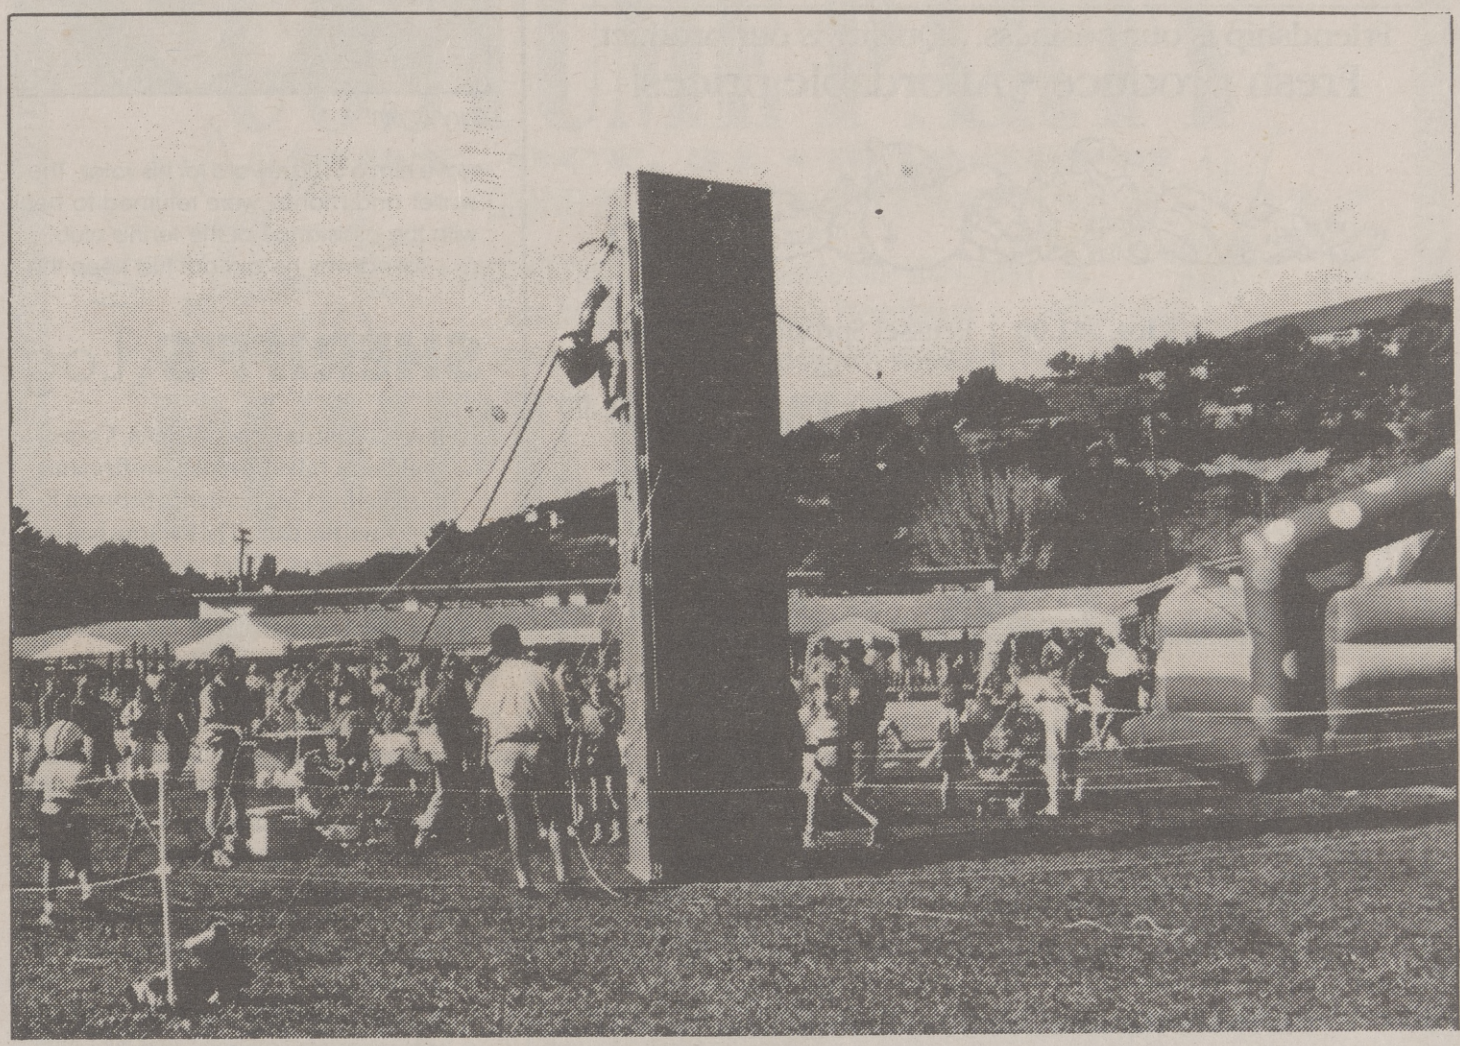
by Virginia Parke

Dr. Gerald Petkus of the Carmel Valley Veterinary Hospital issued a warning to dog owners: Get your pet tested and put on preventive medication for "Heartworm Disease." The disease is reaching epidemic status, particularly in the Cachagua and Big Sur area. Carmel Valley dogs are now at high-risk.

Canine heartworm disease is transmitted by infected mosquitoes. Once a dog is infected the heartworm larvae make their way to the dog's heart and pulmonary arteries. They mature to a length of 14 inches. They cause damage to the heart, lung and eventually damage all other organs. If not detected and controlled with proper treatment, heartworm can lead to congestive heart failure and death.

Signs of the disease include: difficult breathing, coughing, tiring easily, listlessness and weight loss. In many cases these are advanced symptoms. At this point, treatment is complex and expensive. The best plan is to test for exposure first, with a simple blood test and then after a negative result, preventive medication once a month will protect your pet.

Dr. Petkus is holding a clinic on Saturday, November 5, at the Cachagua Community Center from 2 to 4 p.m. The test will cost $16 per pet. It is important to remember that prevention is far less expensive than treatment and that some dogs do not appear to have symptoms in the early stages while others do. It is necessary for a dog to have a heartworm blood test before using preventive medication. Severe or fatal reaction can occur if preventives are given to dogs that have already contacted the disease. Carmel Valley residents are advised to get their dogs in for testing now as a protective measure.



Wall scaling was one of the many events at the annual Tularcitos Carnival held on October 15th. The annual parent organized event provides a fun orientation and meeting place for parents, teachers and students.

Valley man finds and returns cash and cards

It was just another glorious Sunday afternoon for Gary Bryant. He had returned to his Carmel Valley Road home, after a five mile run.

Gary the owner of Perfection Painters, was pulling out of his driveway, he looked right, then left, and "There was a bill on my driveway; I looked down and saw more... and there were $100 bills blowing along Carmel Valley Road," Gary related, from a stool at Adriana's River Rock Cafe.

"$785," Adriana confirmed, "seven $100 bills, twentys, tens, a five and three singles."

Gary continued to describe the event, "They were blowing all over... both sides of the road. I found $300 or $400 and then I found the wallet."

Gary finished his search and then rushed on the the River Rock for a cool drink and to share his amazing find. But, when he arrived the cafe was closed. The door was locked. He knocked on the window and Adriana opened the door. "Gary spread the money out on this table. I was in shock and almost smiled when he produced the wallet," said Adriana as though she were counting the money again.

The owner of the wallet turned out to be a San Francisco restauranteur, who had been a guest at a Valley tennis resort. Gary called her at 4:30 pm. She called him back from San Francisco and gave him a $100 reward for his valor. The wallet and money were returned to her with the assistance of the tennis club.

Asked why he did not just keep the money Gary responded, "I don't feel anything special. It was normal behavior for the Valley. Any of my friends would have done the same thing. I don't have any low integrity friends."

Finding property and being sure it is returned is a way of life for most of the people in Carmel Valley, according to Adriana. She says that two other wallets were returned to her in the same week. "I guess the River Rock is social headquarters, they know that I'll get it to the right person."

Gary Bryant was philosophical about his moral posture and his demonstration of fundamental Valley honesty. Gary has been here for 15 years and grew up in Syracuse, New York. Adraina hails from Chicago's North Shore. That Sunday, they acted in a fashion that they claim manifests the character and integrity of the Valley.

SHERIFF'S Log

10-8 A resident on Upper Walden, Carmel Highlands, called to report two fire arms missing from his residence between 8-10-94 and this date. The firearms had no serial numbers. Total value is $1,150. There are no suspects; possibly the firearms were misplaced, but the owner doesn't think so.

- The Principal of the Carmel River School called to report graffiti on the mural of a classroom, and also on Room 20. Someone wrote letters in black magic marker. The value of the damage is unknown.
- The owner of a Carmel Valley restaurant reported that someone turned off the power to the restaurant sometime during the night by throwing the switch at the fuse box.
- A Saratoga resident reported a burglary to his vacation home on Live Oak Lane, Carmel Valley.

10-9 A Westlake Village, CA resident reported someone took the keys to her car. She was loading the car in the Mission Inn parking lot on Rio Road, Carmel, and possibly left them in the trunk lock.

- A Pennsylvania resident reported the theft of his briefcase and contents from his open car in the paddock area of the track at Laguna Seca.
- Residents from Los Angeles and San Diego reported their vehicles had been broken into while parked in front of a Carmel Valley establishment the previous night. Rear windows were broken out, and alarms were not activated. A canvas-type cooler and a lady's empty purse were taken.

10-11 A Carmel Valley man and a San Jose man both reported their vehicles had been broken into during the night near

The Committee will discuss policy issues of the Carmel Valley Master Plan related to roadway improvements, scope of improvements, funding program options and a draft fee schedule for new development.

The public is encouraged to attend meetings of the Committee, which are intended to provide information and dialogue on the subjects of road improvements and funding.

The Mid-Carmel Valley Fire Department is located at 8455 Carmel Valley Road, just east of Schulte Road.

Workshop covers finding memories

"Capturing Memories: Retrieve the Forgotten - Enhance the Remembered" is the title of an all-day workshop to be led by noted author, poet and educator Illia Thompson on Saturday, October 22, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at Sunset Center, Carmel. Lunch is included in the $65. fee.

Illia Thompson has shared her knowledge and love of writing with others for years. "Through guided exercises, people learn to use writing as a tool to better understanding. One truly can become her or his own best friend," Thompson said. "By capturing thoughts, insights, and intuitions on paper, each one has an opportunity to explore and enhance them and, at the same time, tune into personal hidden inner wisdom."

Thompson earned her education degree from Antioch College and has taught classes from preschool to college. She currently works with Monterey County's Older Adult Program and with North Monterey County's Independent Study Program. Thompson leads private workshops, classes and individual sessions, and also produces and facilitates workshops and seminars in California and in Mexico.

She has written and published two highly acclaimed books: Moments, a book of gentle vignettes from the human experience, and Gracious Seasons, a collection of her writings gathered during her husband's final illness.

To register for the "Capturing Memories: Retrieve the Forgotten - Enhance the Remembered" workshop, or for more information, please call 659-5210.

OBITUARIES

MILDRED VAN DUSON SANTOS

Mildred Van Duson Santos of Hacienda Carmel died on October 14 at the Hospice House of Monterey.

She was born on June 29, 1899, in Ukiah, California. She was a descendant of one of the pioneer Dutch families of California.

She is survived by her son, Rod Santos of Carmel, three grandchildren, Ralph Santos of Dallas Texas, Rod Santos, Junior, of Columbia, Missouri and Cheri Lynn Brandon of Nashville, Tennessee. She is also survived by five great grandchildren.

Private graveside services and burial will be at El Carmelo Cemetery, Pacific Grove. She has requested there be no flowers and that any donations be made to Hospice of the Central Coast, PO Box 2480, Monterey, CA 93942.

The Paul Mortuary is in charge of the arrangements.

Last chance to list businesses in new film commission guide

Time is running out to be included in the Monterey County Film Commission's new Production Resources Guide, which will be used to entice the film and video industry to come on location to film in Monterey County and to hire local people, businesses and services.

The deadline for purchasing a listing or display ad is November 1.

"We've had terrific response from individuals and companies so far," said Julie Armstrong, executive director of the film commission. "But we want to be sure that our local people don't miss out on this opportunity to profit by being made more visible to production companies coming to film here and needing local assistance."

The guide, which will be distributed to more than 5,000 film and video production companies throughout the next year, will be a major marketing tool for the film commission as it seeks to boost the local economy through film productions.

"The strength of local crew and local business support can be a factor in a film company's choice to come film in a location," Armstrong said. We want our listings to be as complete as possible."

For information on the Resources Production Guide, call 646-0910.

This fall, over 1500 school children living in Carmel Valley will get "the homework advantage," thanks to the Carmel Valley Community Youth Center's new Homework Center, opening this week.

Major funding for the center was provided by the Maria Kip Orphanage Fund, the Pebble Beach Foundation, the AT&T Pebble Beach Pro-Am Golf Charities, and many individual donors.

CVCYC is turning the Activity House into a study hall and computer lab. First through twelfth graders will come to the Homework Center after school Monday through Thursday from 2 to 5:30 p.m. in order to: get help with homework; receive remedial assistance in mathematics, reading, spelling or science; or to use the computer lab to write reports and/or utilize the educational software.

The Center will be staffed with volunteers, many of whom are retired educators themselves.

The Homework Center is a natural outgrowth of the Carmel Valley Community Youth Center's evolution as a community-based organization committed to youth, and the CVCYC is excited about the opportunity to fill the gap in community resources by developing this program. However, the support of the larger community is essential to the success of this venture.

The Homework Center is still very much in need of community volunteers willing to put in 2-4 hours each week to make this Center a success. Continued financial support is also necessary to ensure that materials, books and software are kept current. For more information on "How You Can Help" call the Community Center, 659-3983.

Two weeks ago, members of the Mid-Valley Fire District turned out for their annual "smoke reading test" at the mid-valley station. Fire fighters are taught how to differentiate between types of smoke and to identify the probable fuel causing the smoke. The portable machine emits smoke in various colors, from soot black to gray, blue, yellows and reds. The ability to read smoke can be a lifesaving skill for firefighters as they determine risk and method of attack for fires.

Needle exchanges for drug addicts? The Salinas City Council voted "yes" on it. There was no opposition, either in the council or in the audience. One person in the audience told about contracting AIDS, because of using a borrowed needle.

In order to adopt the program, or, rather to allow it to happen (privately funded and operated), the council had to "declare a state of emergency," which gives the police force the right to not arrest needle exchangers in Salinas. Outside the city limits, the sheriff is obligated to arrest exchangers, and the D.A. would prosecute.

The program came before our county supervisors two or three years ago. I made a strong argument in favor of he program. The sheriff and the district attorney both showed up, and vigorously opposed adoption, in spite of being really nice guys in every other way.

Guess who won. Anyway, addicts from all parts of the county, if they have transportation, will be able to come to Salinas to trade needles on exchange days. The "word" is, that Salinas is a major narcotics hub, anyway, so they can buy new supplies, at the same time they exchange needles. Besides, Salinas would be a much better place to find somebody to rob, in order to get spending money for drugs, than a whole lot of other places in our county. (70 percent of our major crimes are drug-related.)

Personally, I feel that allowing or not allowing needle exchanges, which can reduce the spread of a very communicable, very deadly disease, should be strictly a public health matter, totally removed from anybody's personal, or ideological, or religious views. It's anybody's guess how many extra people will die (including wives, or husbands, or children (born and unborn), for lack of such a simple thing as a clean needle, or the knowledge to sterilize a used needle.

At the council meeting I brought up the infected prostitute problem, how to get them out of circulation. Our police chief said it would be unconstitutional to test them, just for being a prostitute. An audience member said that in Las Vegas they pick them up, test them, and if they're positive, they are released with the understanding that, if picked up again, they will be charged with attempted murder.

I expect the smart ones then just move to some other city. On the same general subject, I suppose that, some day, a rapist who turns out positive, if caught, should be tried for attempted murder.

Hey, it's almost ten o'clock. Wives, do you know where your husbands are?

FROM WHERE I STAND Lee Phelps

Words, like people, can be -- and are -- prostituted.

Gay, for instance. It used to mean happy, giddy, exuberant, cheerful. Now it means someone who is a homosexual or a lesbian.

Immigrant, for instance. It used to mean a person who was a citizen of another country than the United States who applied for permission to enter the United States legally. And waited in his or her own country until given permission, verified by the property entry visas and other documents, to board a ship or plane and emigrate from that country to the United States. Under our federal laws, such an immigrant has to meet certain criteria, among which are not being a criminal, not having communicable or infectious diseases, and being a person of good character who is capable of obtaining employment and becoming a productive member of society.

According to both Webster's Unabridged Dictionary and federal law, that remains the definition of the word "immigrant." But you wouldn't believe it, from the number of supposedly educated people -- and major media reporters, editors and broadcasters -- who deliberately or ignorantly are prostituting the word immigrant to include persons who violate our borders and our laws to come here and remain here illegally. Illegal aliens are not immigrants.

What they are, all too often, are economic parasites eager to enjoy all the privileges, but none of the responsibilities, of United States citizenship or legal residency. Consider:

* One out of every six state prison inmates in California is an illegal alien, costing us nearly a half-billion dollars a year just to keep them in prison.

* It costs 150% as much to educate an illegal alien child in our public schools as it does an English-speaking citizen child, and that extra $2,300 a year per alien child totals $1.5 billion a year in California.

* Approximately 80% of all narcotics smuggled into the U.S. are carried by foreign nationals, primarily illegal aliens.

* In 1993, California taxpayers funded some $899,000,000 in "free" medical care to illegal aliens, an increase of 1,200% in such costs from 1989, just four years previously.

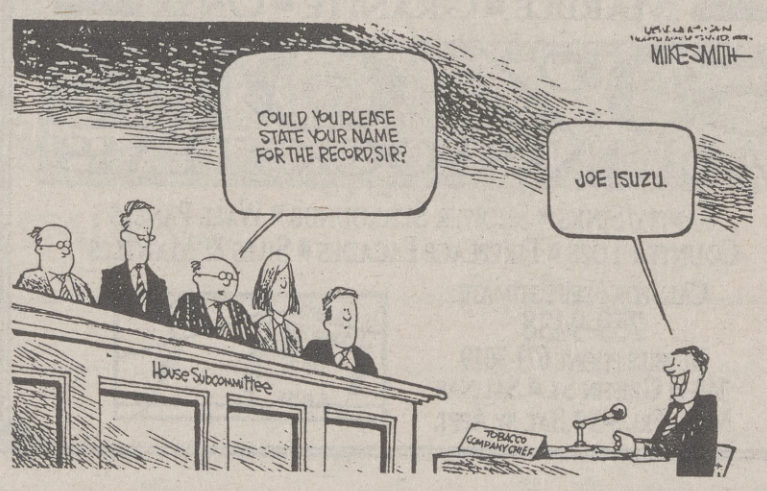
* In San Diego County, fraudulent use of the county's social service (welfare) programs by illegal aliens costs taxpayers almost $350,000 a year. And there are 58 counties in California.

These are just a few hard facts you should consider when you fill out your absentee ballot, or go to the polls, in the coming November general election, and come to Proposition 187. You just might take note of the first two words of its official title: not "Illegal Immigrants" but, rather, "Illegal Aliens."

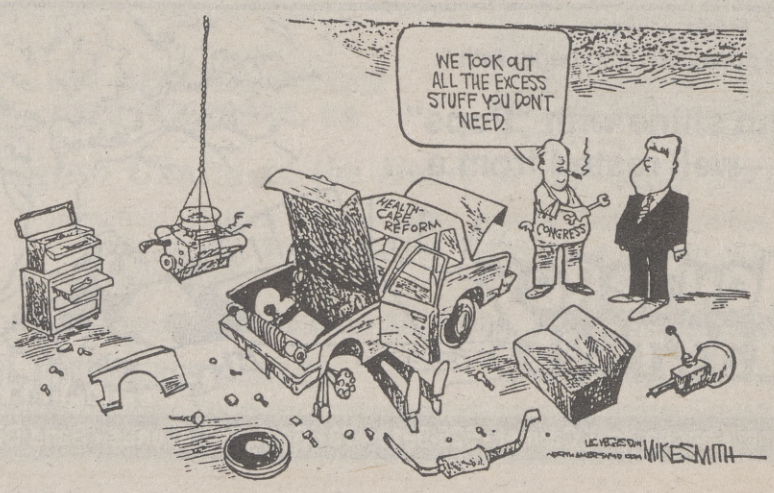
There is a difference, no matter how hard some misguided or self-serving folks with their own agendas (which they want you to pay for) keep trying to convince you otherwise.

Proposition 187 needs -- and deserves -- your "Yes!" vote.

That's how it seems, from where I stand.



YEAH, RIGHT. LIKE I'M SUPPOSED TO BELIEVE THAT?
I WAS ABDUCTED BY ALIENS
I WAS USED IN A RADIATION EXPERIMENT BY THE GOVERNMENT



LETTERS to the Editor

Dear Editor, C.V. Sun:

Thank you to All Saints Day School for inviting representatives of Redwings Horse Sanctuary to attend their annual "Blessing of the Animals."

Redwings Horse Sanctuary is dedicated to educating youth as well as adults about the plight of horses, ponies, and donkeys in this country, and to protect them from abuse and slaughter.

Numerous recent studies have shown there is a direct correlation of child abuse and animal abuse.

Children who are themselves victims of abuse often begin mistreating animals because they feel that animals are the only things over which they have power. As the child grows into an adult, he turns from abusing animals to abusing children and other adults. The syndrome begins and the circle becomes unbroken.

Thanks to All Saints for teaching children how to respect animals. We must educate the young and try to break the circle at an early age. If we can teach children respect for animals they will soon learn to respect each other and then, and only then, will the circle be broken.

Redwings Horse Sanctuary invites all schools to participate in field trips to the Sanctuary. Teachers are asked to call Deborah at 624-8464 to arrange for their class to visit the Sanctuary.

Redwings is also open to the public each Sunday from 1 to 4 p.m.

Together we can stop the abuse . . . to animals and children alike.

Editor, Carmel Valley Sun:

As a former resident of Carmel Valley, I commend you for your coverage of the AARP Town Hall Meeting on Proposition 186, the California Health Security Act. I would like to follow up on the question raised about long-term care and the payment of room and board.

The Medicare 1994 Handbook reveals specific answers about how much long-term care is available under Medicare (Part A). After hospitalization, a beneficiary would normally be eligible for up to 100 days in a "Skilled Nursing Facility" (not a standard nursing home) for semiprivate room and board, general nursing, skilled nursing, and rehabilitative services, etc. However, after the first 20 days, a beneficiary would be charged $87 per day for the next 80 days as coinsurance. There would be no such limits on those eligible for MediCal/Medicaid.

Under Prop. 186, all types of long-term care would be a standard benefit after participation in the program for two years. Of course, patients receiving long-term care (including extended mental health care) would be charged room and board similar to Medicare, except that it would not end at 100 days.

I must take exception to the recent ad hominem attack by Lee Phelps on my good friend, Dr. John Ratcliffe. Public discussion on such important public policy matters would be better served by dealing with the issues rather than the personalities. Besides, one treads on shaky ground by challenging the mental capacity of a gentleman who practiced surgery for close to 50 years.

As for issues, I found Mr. Phelps' version of the truth somewhat distorted when he asserts that the government will collect $40-50 billion in "new taxes" without adding the other side of the coin that this money represents nothing new. It merely replaces what Californians are already paying for health care in the form of premiums, deductibles, co-payments and out-of-pocket expenses.

Further, the Health Commissioner would not "set all doctor, hospital, and drug prices" without having negotiated with all health care providers. Nor will the Commissioner determine which drugs would be prescribed without recommendations from the Health Care Policy Advisory Board consisting of health care and public health professionals.

"Half truths" can easily be considered "halflies" or just plain "----lies," according to the eye of the beholder.

Dear Editor, Carmel Valley Sun:

Big PACS, little pacs, PACs of all sorts.

Hundreds of millions of dollars every year flow into the Democrat Party political machine. The Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee has several million on hand this year to spend on elections, $5000 of which found its way into Bill Monning for Assembly campaign.

To be fair millions go to Republicans as well. Like it or not it is a legal, efficient method of organizational support for candidates and parties. Clinton, Brown, Brown (Willie and Kathleen), Wilson, etc. all take PAC money.

Now we have a new breed of political crusader -- the no PAC candidate. They profess to be virtuous became they don't take PAC money, so they say. However, with open arms they willingly cash in on big party contributions. Where do these party contributions come from you ask? 'Why PACS of course. BIG PACS, little pacs, PACs of all sorts' (read with a Dr. Seuss cadence).

Bill Monning says he will only take money from the Party. That's right the same party that takes money from Chemical Industry magnates and other notorious "Bad PACs." And guess who administers this pot of political gold, why it's our good friend Willie Brown. I'm sure Monning and Brown will be "Billy and Willie" after the delivery is made.

So please, Mr. Monning, save your breath. Any support you can drum up on this PAC issue will dissipate the second you take money from the party. Wait a second, I have an idea. Why not just grow a spine and stand on issues you actually believe in, like promoting voting rights for noncitizens.

New business owners co-host Halloween events

by Mary Beth Bowman

What with eerie gusty winds and orange moons already this month, Halloween this year promises to be filled with exciting spooky surprises. Hacienda Hay and Feed and the Baja Cantina have teamed up to offer some prizes and surprises at a cost that's hard to beat: just one dollar.

That's right -- one hundred copper pennies gets adults into the costume contest and party that is taking place Monday the 31st at Baja Cantina starting at 8 p.m. Get those creative juices flowing because the lucky winner(s) receive a grand prize for first place that is also hard to beat: a tropical getaway to a choice of locations (Hawaii, Bahamas, Mexico or Jamaica!)

Second place is a Baja Limousine Ride and Dinner (good for one year) and third place is a Baja Cantina Champagne Dinner for two. Judging begins at 9 p.m., featuring several local celebs (maybe even yours truly) and awards will be announced at 10 p.m.

The best part of all is that the one dollar donation goes directly to the Carmel Valley Community Youth Center -- so you can party and feel charitable at the same time. Hacienda co-owner Dave Nelson predicts the Cantina is the place to be for this year's Halloweeners, so see you there!

Gallery Events

At the Carmel Valley Hall Gallery, 8545 Carmel Valley Road, local artists and members of the Monterey Watercolor Society will show twenty-two of their paintings. Free admission. 10 a.m to 9 p.m. daily through October 31.

The Art of Healing art show and mini-cultural festival honoring women and men who have survived child sexual abuse. Sponsored by the Survivors Healing Center, Santa Cruz, the show will run through October 28. For more information, call 475-5978 or 659-1733.

During October, the Vest Pocket Gallery at the Forest Hill Manor in Pacific Grove features Around the World in 30 Years, a collection of oil paintings by Betty Baron and bronze sculptures by Susan Sable. 551 Gibson St.; 375-5125

10-13 Security patrol reported an intoxicated female near a Crossroads business. The woman, a transient, was located and transported to county jail as she was unable to care for herself.

- A Carmel Valley Road resident reported receiving an annoying phone call from Neighborhood Watch and the Special Olympics.
- A 15 year old Village resident was cited for public intoxication.
- A Carmel Valley woman reported receiving threatening phone calls from a business competitor regarding copyright concerns of respective clients.
- A Seaside man was stopped on Hwy 1 and Holman Hwy for erratic driving. He was turned over to CHP for DUI. The passenger, also intoxicated, refused a taxi ride home; instead, he was given transport to county jail for being drunk in public.
- A resident on Handley Drive reported that an acquaintance had failed to return to his residence. He did not believe she was at risk. However, he was concerned about her driving ability and her unfamiliarity with the area.
- Pebble Beach security turned in a pair of blue jeans containing $30 in the pocket; found at Bird Rock.
- On Guadalupe St, Carmel, a generator was reported stolen from the rear of a pickup truck during the night while it was parked on the street. Valued at $1500.
- Deputies responded to a residence on Cachagua Road, regarding a heated argument between mother and daughter. The daughter left with her children who were picked up by her husband from Marina.
- A Seaside man was cited on Nacimiento Road at Nacimiento Camp for having a loaded rifle in his car.
- A Carmel Valley woman reported receiving harassing phone calls from her ex-husband.
- A Pebble Beach resident reported that over the last 10 days someone vandalized a Bill Monning sign and some plants in his front yard. There are no suspects.
- A Carmel woman reported having some difficulties with in-laws over the care of an 86 year old man.
- A resident on 14th St, Carmel, reported that sometime during the day someone entered his unlocked garage and stole a girl's bicycle valued at $180.
- A Pebble Beach resident reported a CD player was removed from his vehicle between 11 p.m. and 10:15 a.m., along with 6 to 8 CDs.

Editor, The Sun:

Just as California is emerging from the depths of its worst recession in decades, along comes a plan that will cause a major blackslide and put hundreds of thousands of Californians out of work. It may sound unbelievable, but that's exactly what the proposed "single payer" initiative, Proposition 186, could do if it is approved by voters in November.

Proposition 186 seeks to replace private health insurance with a state-run, government-controlled health care system. This $40 billion bureaucracy would be funded through increased payroll and income taxes. That's right. The supporters of this measure actually want to slap business with payroll tax increases of 4.4 to 8.9 percent, depending on the number of employees.

Most California employers would be taxed between 4.4 percent and 8.9 percent of total payroll (part-time, full-time, etc.) as follows:

1 - 10 Employees: Total Monthly Payroll x 12 Months x .044 Tax = Per Year New Payroll Tax.

11-25 Employees: Total Monthly Payroll x 12 Months x .06 Tax = Per Year New Payroll Tax.

26-50 Employees: Total Monthly Payroll x 12 Months x .07 Tax = Per Year New Payroll Tax.

More than 50 Employees: Total Monthly Payroll x 12 Months x .089 Tax = Per Year New Payroll Tax.

Example: 30 Employees @ $60,000 total monthly payroll: $60,000 x 12 Months x .07 Tax = $50,400 Per Year New Payroll Tax.

Individuals would be expected to pay a 2.5 to 5 percent income tax surcharge, depending on their income. In addition to the new payroll tax, the measure adds a SURCHARGE of 2.5 percent to 5 percent to your California individual income tax, depending on your income level.

For instance, a single filer with no children with an income of $16,000 (standard deductions) would face a 160.29 percent increase in state income taxes. Using the same criteria, an individual with an income of $50,000 would face a 41.56 percent increase and an individual with an income of $100,000 would face a 32.48 percent increase. A married, filing jointly (two children, standard deductions) with an income of $32,000 would face a 229.57 percent increase, while a similar filer with an income of $100,000 would face a 42.51 percent increase.

It's hard enough for California businesses, especially small business, to survive in this state. If Proposition 186 passes, it would force business owners and operators to lay off more employees, move out of state, or go out of business altogether. And what new business would want to created jobs in a state that requires an enormous payroll tax?

Not many dispute that our health care system needs improvement - but raising taxes and destroying jobs is not the way to achieve this. Vote "NO" on Proposition 186 in November.

Sincerely,
Robert Zobel

Taxable Income Terms - Part II

by Bob W. Ingram

Today we present the second of a four part series entitled "A Glossary of Taxable Fixed Income Terms." Our subject is timely because so many of us along the Central Coast depend upon income from bonds to supplement retirement income. In addition is our weekly local stock update.

A Glossary of Taxable Fixed Income Terms

Part 2

Ladder Portfolio: A strategy used to diversify holdings with longer term securities, by investing in a selection of bonds with different maturities. By including longer term securities, the portfolio generates higher average yields while maintaining liquidity through its short term holdings.

Maturity: The number of years until the principal amount of a bond is due and payable by the issuer to its bondholders. Bonds are issued with a variety of short (a few days to one year), intermediate (two to ten years), and long term (ten to forty years) maturities.

Credit Rating: A rating, assigned by a recognized credit rating agency such as Standard and Poor or Moody's, that reflects a corporation's ability to repay its obligations and the issued security's credit quality.

Federal Agency Securities: Issued by U.S. Government agencies and sponsored corporations such as Fannie Mae, Freddie Mac and Ginnie Mae, these securities carry direct or implicit government backing, with credit quality second only to treasury securities.

OUR ANIMAL FRIENDS Araby Colton

The Protestant Work Ethic—Pocket Gopher Style

"He is afflicted or blessed in extreme degree," says esteemed naturalist Jack Schaeffer, "with what is known among us humans as the Protestant work ethic."

He's our pocket gopher, yours and mine. He makes those holes in your lawn, and your rose garden. He topples the cacti I've persuaded to grow on my barren hillside as if they had been sliced with a machete.

Other rodents do some burrowing, but our pocket gopher has made it a professional, an engineering science, a fine art. And he's at it nearly twenty-four hours a day.

He's strictly a North American phenomenon, and he's been her over twenty-million years.

His name, gopher, comes from the French gaufre, meaning honeycomb. Says Schaeffer, "He is, without any doubt, the most all-around-complete honeycombing burrower in the whole of the animal kingdom."

In case you've never seen him, and hardly anyone has, as he rarely leaves his subterranean kingdom, he's the perfect fossorial, a thickset muscular little fellow, about eleven inches long, with a short tail, spectacular claws on his front feet, and the most enormous incisors, two top, and two bottom. He's so perfectly designed for digging that nature has made little change in him in all his millions of years on earth.

Scientists wonder, did nature give him those incisors because he wanted to dig, or did he dig because he has those incisors? Because the incisors never cease growing, so that if he didn't keep them constantly being worn down they would grow right out of his head, and he'd starve to death.

His lips fold in behind those daggers, so that he never gets dirt in his mouth! He's called a pocket gopher because he has these enormous pouches, on each side of his face, in which he carries food and nesting materials, never dirt. As he goes about his burrowing any roots, tubers, bulbs or other edibles he finds are neatly, precisely chopped into lengths and poked into a pouch, to be stored later in one of his pantry rooms.

And no modest country cottage for him. No sir! His home is a ten-room mansion, at least. A spacious room for his bedroom, numerous pantries, a bathroom. Not being a gregarious type he has no parlor for entertaining. When the bathroom gets unpleasantly odorous he simply walls it up, and starts another. If any of his store foodstuffs begin to spoil he walls the room up, and digs another.

And lest you think all this is amusing, but of little importance, consider his contribution to our land. A billion little earth-movers, enriching the soil, fertilizing it, keeping the surface fertile, breaking up hard soils, weeding, plowing. The early horsemen, crossing the Great Plains, where the grass was up to their horses' bellies, could thank our little gopher friend.

We may not love him. Bad cess to us! But Mother Nature does.

tion and installation may still be going on this week. Never mind the mess, though, homework is a happening thing here and volunteers (many of whom are retired educators) are on hand Monday through Friday from 2 to 5:30 p.m. to assist students in K-12 grades with a variety of needs.

The staff will help with homework assignments and tutor students who need remedial assistance in math, reading, spelling or science. Students may also use the two computers to write reports or utilize the educational software. "We locked out the games," Doreck noted, "except those which are math or education oriented." He also predicts the center will house up to five computers in the future.

The center is open to all public and private school students in Carmel and Carmel Valley for a fee of $5 a month. "The (youth center) is excited at the opportunity to fill the gap in community resources (with) this program," Doreck said, "(but) the support of the larger community is essential..."

The center opened with the generous help of funding from the Maria Kip Orphanage Fund, the Pebble Beach Foundation, the AT & T Pebble Beach Pro-Am Golf Charities and many individual donors. Even so, Doreck emphasized, the Homework Center is still very much in need of community volunteers willing to put in 2-4 hours each week to help the Center succeed.

Additional financial support is needed as well to ensure that materials, books and software is kept current, according to Doreck. He urged all who are interested in helping out to call the Community Center at 659-3983.

VALLEY FINANCE
Douglas Pease

A sign over the desk of my travel agent says people worldwide change their air flight reservations 150 times a minute. It is startling enough to reflect on the fact they DO make so many changes, but it is even more amazing to realize they CAN make so many changes. And not just for travel.

Investors pay attention to what happens on the stock exCHANGEs, hoping for a change for the better, probably close to 150 times a minute.

If we can and do make changes so rapidly, why is the human impulse to resist change so strong? Some things never change, like Improvements to the quality of life in our country have served to double our life ex- rocks, while others come and go quickly, like Pet Rocks.

pectancy in this century, which means there are more elderly people in our population than ever before. Those who resist making changes to accommodate this remarkable situation are kidding themselves. Any pocket calculator today has the power to show the financial challenges of living longer, but roughly 2% of our population will qualify to continue their present lifestyle beyond age 60 . . . with an average of 20 years more to go. That's a BIG change in our country, if only because the 98% who will be forced to settle for less can all vote . . and they will.

If people worldwide can change their travel plans 150 times a minute, surely we can handle a few basic changes in the way we plan our lives. "The good old days" are behind us, but there are better days ahead

. . . if we will just plan for the changes we know are coming.

Questions and Answers about California Subdivisions

The California Land Title Association, which is dedicated to facilitating the transfer of real property throughout California, provides the following information on understanding subdivision public reports:

Q: What is a Subdivision Public Report?

A: The Subdivision Public Report is a disclosure statement for the public which permits the sale or lease of lots, parcels or units within a subdivision. Just as corporations must obtain approval to issue and sell stock certificates, a developer must obtain approval to sell or lease five or more lots, parcels or units within a subdivision.

Q: Who must obtain a State of California Department of Real Estate Subdivison Public Report?

A: Any person or persons who intend on selling or leasing five or more lots, parcels, or units within a subdivison must first obtain a Subdivision Public Report.

Q: What types of subdivison projects would be exempt from obtaining a Public Report?

A: Those subdivisions with less than five units; subdivisions offered by public agencies; commercial and industrial subdivisions; a standard subdivision (having no common area) within the boundaries of a city with all lots to be improved; for specific examples and explanations regarding exempt status contact the Department of Real Estate directly at (213) 897-3399.

Q: Is there more than one type of Subdivision Public Report?

A: The Subdivison Public Report, also called a White Report or Final Subdivison Public Report, authorizes a developer to sell or lease lots, parcels or units within a subdivison. On some occasions a developer may apply for a Preliminary Public Report, also known as a Pink Report, which will allow a developer to advertise and take reservation deposit monies for the sale or lease of lots, parcels or units within subdivision. Reservation deposits taken by a developer under a Preliminary Subdivision Public Report are fully refundable.

Q: What kind of information can typically be found in the Public Report?

A: The Department of Real Estate guidelines are specific about certain conditions that should always be included in the public report. Generally, the Public Report will disclose such information as: applicant's name, location and size of the subdivison, information on utilities, schools, taxes, management, maintenance and operational expenses, unusual easements, rights of way, set back requirements on vacant land offerings, restrictions or conditions imposed upon the buyer, any unusual costs that a consumer might have to incur and any unusual financial or conveyance arrangements. Each Public Report is unique to its specific project. The information found within the pages is provided to assist the potential purchaser with making an informed decision.

Q: What is the purpose of the Subdivision Public Report?

A: The purpose of the Subdivison Public Report is to inform the consumer about a specific property/project, thereby offering some protection from misrepresentation, deceit and fraud. During the processing of the Subdivision Public Report, the California Department of Real Estate, among other things, reviews the developer's project management budget, deposit money handling, advertisements and the guarantees made to complete all promised improvements.

CV Property Owners meeting report

by Elizabeth Cowley

The Carmel Valley Property Owners Association (CVPOA) held its monthly meeting last Wednesday, October 12 at the Mid Valley Fire Station. Assemblyman Bruce McPherson stopped by to give his support and express his concern over two issues, the misuse of Proposition 172 funds and saltwater intrusion, both issues he plans to tackle if reelected.

The transportation committee reported that Carmel Valley Village Improvement Committee (CVVIC) opposes adding a third turning lane through the Village as well as the additional stop signs the Department of Public Works has suggested. CVVIC does, however, support eliminating parking in front of the Beacon Station and changing the parking in front of Will's Fargo to parallel.

Board member Bernardi suggested, and the Board approved, writing a letter to Supervisor Karas, the Planning Department, and the Sheriff's Department regarding concern over the lack of planning for the Quail Lodge Concours that was held in August. The lack of adequate parking, and the resulting traffic problems along the Carmel Valley Road are the main concerns to be expressed in the letter.

The library committee announced that the Carmel Village Library will hold a "Buckeye Reunion" fund-raiser in January or February of next year. They plan to recreate the old Buckeye bar, and are looking for input from locals of that era.

The Land Use Committee reported that Carefree Partners, owners of the Carmel Valley Ranch, are considering reducing the number of condominiums in exchange for increasing the number of hotel rooms by 44. They have also agreed to change the color

REAL ESTATE Rand Smith

Somebody once told me that psychologically, it takes 21 days for human beings to adjust to a new environment.

I don't know who discovered this, or how they were able to calculate it. But, so this dictum goes, after floundering around in fear and anxiety for 3 weeks, our adaptable species can accept just about anything.

Maybe part of it is some sort of resignation to the reality that you have just learned about an new environment that other people after you have and will discover. Maybe it takes three weeks to recognize that you've entered into "The Twilight Zone."

I have experience in this field of psychology, because I sell houses. The houses I sell, coincidentally, have usually been someone's home. These homes have been a place people have been comfortable in, and used to -- up until the time comes that they must sell.

When this time arrives, it is no longer a home. It becomes a storefront, housing some future owner's dream of what THEIR home might be like. Would-be sellers need to contemplate this. They do this by "Getting Ready." When somebody is "Getting Ready" to put their home on the market, they are in a state of apprehension. They know their life's routine is about to be altered.

Depending on their circumstances, their emotional state ranges as mild arrogance ("we don't know what to do if it doesn't sell"), which can border on absolute panic.

Next they step further into the unknowns, "The Signing." Whenever a person signs a listing contract to sell their home, they lose sleep, perhaps the best gauge of a professional Real Estate agent is how they handle it. Some people need a lot of information before they sign. Some people need to be commiserated with. Some people need to be pushed. Yet, even with the strongest resolve "The Signing" is always a touchy moment of commitment, and the entrance to the passageway of change.

Further down this psychological hallway, sellers are confronted with "The Announcement." Normally this comes simultaneously with the installation of the For Sale sign.

As a real estate agent, installing a sign with my name on it, on someone else's property, is as close as it gets to conquering foreign lands. When I was a new agent (okay, confess, even now) when I'm not feeling too perky, I might take a drive and look at my "for sale" and "sold" signs on properties around town. For me, as an agent, it's an ego trip; a measure of how successful I am.

For the seller, that sign is altogether different. It is nothing short of an intrusion. Because this dwelling has been your home, many memories will live there forever. Putting up a sign, therefore, is like an admission that you're willing to leave a part of your life behind. If you're moving to a "better place," does that mean you're leaving a "worse" place? If you are moving somewhere you would rather not, does this mean you'll never again enjoy the same quality of life?

A neighborhood is, after all, made of neighbors, not houses. So "The Announcement" is taken by others in various ways, too. Whether they admit it or not, neighbors get defensive. After all, you're leaving and they're staying; someone is doing the "right" thing.

So begins the next phase: "The Interviews." They start right away. At first the inquiries are accepted as friendly concerns. "Where are you moving?" "Is that what you really want?" You answer freely, but soon you develop scripts. It doesn't take long before you don't want to answer anymore.

As this occurs, there is a good chance that a mild level of paranoia takes hold. And every day longer that the sign stays up, you feel like you're being somehow judged.

Enter "The Advisors." Is it your imagination, or are there suddenly a lot of people who now know a lot about you, or your situation, or the real estate market? For some reason it is all that is discussed, anywhere. A guy down the street is overheard saying you'll never get that much. There's an article in a magazine that gives a horrifying account of someone who has just done what you are about to do.

Someone sees an ad for your house and says you're giving it away -- not that they're interested, mind you. Everybody wants a detailed description of your next home, or an account of your plans.

Now get "The Question." Every half hour, as you answer the phone, go to the store, at lunch, at work, at the cleaners, from the carwash guy, "Any bites yet?"

You don't want to, but you start "The

- The Assistant Principal at Carmel High School reported a student was in custody for theft. One juvenile was cited.
- The Assistant Principal at Carmel High School called to report a student in custody for possession of marijuana. The juvenile was cited.

A supervisor at a construction site on Grey Goose Gulch reported the theft of a gas stove from the site sometime during the night of 10-12 to 10-13.

Q: What State of California Department of Real Estate agency is responsible for policing compliance with Public Reports?

A: The Commissioner of the Department of Real Estate is responsible for policing compliance of the Subdivision Public Report. Whenever the Commissioner believes from satisfactory evidence that any person has or is about to violate any provisions, conditions, or requirements of the Subdivision Public Report, the Commissioner may bring an action in the Superior Court against such person, in the name of the People of the State of California.

Q: Why is the California Department of Real Estate Subdivison Public Report important to a new home buyer?

A: The Subdivision Public Report gives a potential home buyer pertinent information regarding the subdivision he/she is buying into. Although the Public Report is neither an offer no a recommendation to purchase, it is an invaluable source of information for the consumer. Also important is the disclosure portion of the Public Report which serves to alert consumers to any negative aspects of a particular offering.

Q: What California State Agency is responsible for issuing the Subdivision Public Report?

A: Under the California Business and Transportation Agency is the Department of Real Estate whose Chief Officer is the Real Estate Commissioner. It is the Real Estate Commissioner's duties, through the Department of Real Estate, to issue the Subdivision Public Reports, license real estate brokers and sales persons, and adopt rules and regulations for the enforcement of the California laws dealing with the real estate industry.

Q: How does the California Department of Real Estate protect the subdivision purchaser.

A: The Department of Real Estate as established stringent guidelines and standards with which developers must comply when structuring their projects. All aspects of the subdivison offering are subjected to these guidelines and standards in order to protect the public from misrepresentation, deceit and fraud.

Lie." "Oh, there's actually a couple of people, but they're being transferred -- arranging their financing, selling their house, working out the details," you say, as you turn and walk away.

And without you even noticing, this is when it happens. You don't duck away from the window when people stop and take a flyer off the sign. You just watch them. At work, you realize that your underwear is lying on top of the clothes hamper, but you don't race home.

You start to wake up late on Sunday morning again. You look at your calendar, and you realize it's been about three weeks since you've seen your agent. So, is there anything happening out there? After all, your house is for sale, isn't it? And you don't want to get too used to it.

of the hotel from gray to moss green in an effort to better blend in with the foliage.

The revision process of the Carmel Valley Master Plan was discussed and the Board agrees that a comprehensive review would be beneficial. The document is generally amended as necessary, usually in a piecemeal manner as problems arise. Robert Slimmons, Monterey County Planning Department, expressed to Board Member Crane-Franks that he agrees a comprehensive review is in order.

The Water Management Committee reported proposed changes in the permit application process. Presently a developer must show a long term water source as part of the application requirements. The change proposes allowing a discretionary permit to be issued without, but contingent on, proof of water. This would allow developers to take their project to the Board of Supervisors prior to proof of a water source.

The next CVPOA meeting will be held on Wednesday, November 16, at All Saints School
